

Your own client & studio portal

Every screen in this document is from a live portal we built for a bridal hair & makeup artist in the GTA, shown under a placeholder studio name with demo clients. It is the starting point, not the finished product: your version is shaped around how you work. This page lists what we can add, change, or leave out.

MADE YOURS, IN EVERY BUILD

- Your brand throughout
Colours, fonts, logo and tone on every page, email, invoice and PDF, on your own domain.
- Your services & price list
Your services, event types, standard prices and timings, loaded in before your first booking.
- Your agreement, your policies
Retainer percentage, cancellation and rescheduling terms, photo consent and travel rules, in your words.
- Your prep guides
Hair and skin preparation guides rewritten in your voice, with your do's and don'ts.

ADD-ONS WE CAN BUILD FOR YOU

- 1 Card payments inside the portal
Brides pay the retainer, the balance or any invoice by card or Apple Pay. The payment records itself and the balance updates. E-transfer stays as an option.
- 2 Each guest pays her own share
Bridesmaids pay for their own services through the party link, so the bride isn't chasing money from eight people. Builds on card payments.
- 3 Automatic reminders
Email or text nudges: retainer not in yet, intake unfinished, prep guides a week out, balance due, timeline the night before.
- 4 Trial appointments with a look record
Book the trial as its own step, then save the products, shades, photos and notes that worked. It becomes the reference for the day.
- 5 Assistant logins
Assistants sign in on their phone and see only the timelines and profiles for the events they're working.
- 6 Calendar sync
Every event's call time lands in your Google or Apple calendar. The bride can add her day to hers.
- 7 Enquiry to booking, no re-typing
Your website's enquiry form feeds a leads list in the studio. One tap turns an enquiry into a client and sends the invite.
- 8 Receipts & year-end export
A receipt emails itself when you record a payment. One export of the year's payments and invoices for your accountant.
- 9 Date availability on your website
Visitors check whether their date is open before they enquire, straight from your bookings.
- 10 After-the-event follow-up
A thank-you note and a Google review request, sent on a schedule you set, respecting each bride's photo consent.
- 11 Messages in one place
A thread per client inside the portal, so questions stop scattering across DMs, texts and email. You get an email when she writes.
- 12 Change addendum to re-sign
The portal already warns you when a booking changes after she signed. This adds a one-tap addendum she re-signs with the new amounts.
- 13 Travel distance helper
Distance from your base to each getting-ready address, shown while you set the travel fee. The fee is always yours to decide.
- 14 Studio insights
Bookings by month, booked versus collected, your busiest dates, and where your brides come from.

And anything can come out.

Multiple events per booking, the party link, the approval step, invoices, the timeline builder, prep guides, private notes: if a piece doesn't fit how you work, we leave it out. The portal should feel like your studio, not a piece of software.

What the portal does, at a glance

Two sides of one system: a private portal for each bride, and a studio for you. Everything lives on your own website address and works on a phone.

FOR EACH BRIDE

- ◆ A personal invite link. She sets a password once and lands on her own page.
- ◆ One clear next step at the top of her home page, with her progress underneath.
- ◆ Every event in one booking: mehndi, wedding, reception, each with its own date, place and prices.
- ◆ An e-signed agreement with the full fee schedule for every event, frozen at signing and printable.
- ◆ Payments at a glance: total, paid, left to pay, how to pay, her payment history and her invoices.
- ◆ An intake form pre-filled from her booking. She only checks the highlighted answers.
- ◆ Look profiles that ask only what matters. A hair-only guest never sees skin questions.
- ◆ One party link. Bridesmaids pick the events they're attending and fill in their own details and photos.
- ◆ Her documents: the agreement, the guides that match what she booked, and a timeline for each event.

FOR YOU

- ◆ A new booking in minutes: events, services from your price list, fees and discounts. The retainer and balance work themselves out.
- ◆ Your price list, set once in Settings, filling in every new booking.
- ◆ A review queue with email alerts. Approve, or ask for a change with a note she sees.
- ◆ Her corrections flagged. Anything she changed from your booking is marked, and one tap copies it across.
- ◆ A timeline builder: artists side by side, auto-generated from your rules, drag to fine-tune, published per event, saved or emailed as a PDF.
- ◆ Branded invoices, numbered, emailed as a PDF with a copy to you, and waiting in her portal.
- ◆ Payments as they really happen: retainer, part-payments by cash or e-transfer, and the final balance.
- ◆ A warning when a booking total changes after she signed.
- ◆ Private notes and a client flag, archive or delete for good, weekly backups.

Under the hood, briefly.

Each bride can only ever see her own data, enforced by the database itself. Photos are in private storage and open through short-lived links. Studio and client logins are separate doors, and an account of the wrong kind is turned away. Deleting a client erases every form, photo and login, which keeps you onside with Canadian privacy law (PIPEDA).

The journey, from first enquiry to the wedding morning

What happens on your side and on the bride's side at each step. Each step is shown on the pages that follow.

STEP	YOU, IN THE STUDIO	THE BRIDE, IN HER PORTAL
1 ENQUIRY	She enquires through your website or Instagram. You quote her the way you always do.	She hears back from you, as today.
2 BOOKING	You add her with every event, services from your price list and any fees. Retainer and balance calculate, and her invite goes out.	She receives a welcome email with a personal link, valid for 7 days.
3 REGISTRATION	Her card in your client list changes from "Invite pending" to registered.	She chooses a password and lands on her home page, with her first step waiting.
4 AGREEMENT	A signed agreement lands in your review queue and your inbox. One tap confirms it.	She reads her agreement with every event and price, picks photo consent, and signs.
5 RETAINER	You record it received with the date and method. The prep guides that match her services unlock.	She sends 30% by e-transfer. Her step completes on its own.
6 INTAKE	Profiles arrive as her party fills them in. You can send an invoice any time.	She checks the pre-filled event details, fills in her look, and shares the party link.
7 REVIEW	You approve or ask for changes. Anything she changed from your booking is flagged, and one tap applies it.	She sees "In review", then "Approved", or your note with a button to revise.
8 TIMELINE	You auto-generate each event's timeline, drag to adjust, and publish it. Save or email it as a PDF.	Her timeline appears for each event, on her phone and printable.
9 FINAL PAYMENT	You send a branded invoice for the balance and record payments as they arrive.	She sees what's left and pays. Her home page says she's ready for the big day.
10 AFTER THE DAY	Archive her, or delete everything if she asks. A backup runs every week.	Her portal stays open for her agreement and documents.

Every event and every price, in one booking

You enter what you agreed with her. A booking can hold one event or a whole wedding week.

STEP 2 · BOOKING

5

Step 2: The invite

Her personal link, copied or emailed

The moment a booking is created you see her invite link. The same link goes to her inbox in a branded email.

Links expire in 7 days

A used or expired link stops working. "New invite link" on her Overview issues a fresh one and emails it again.

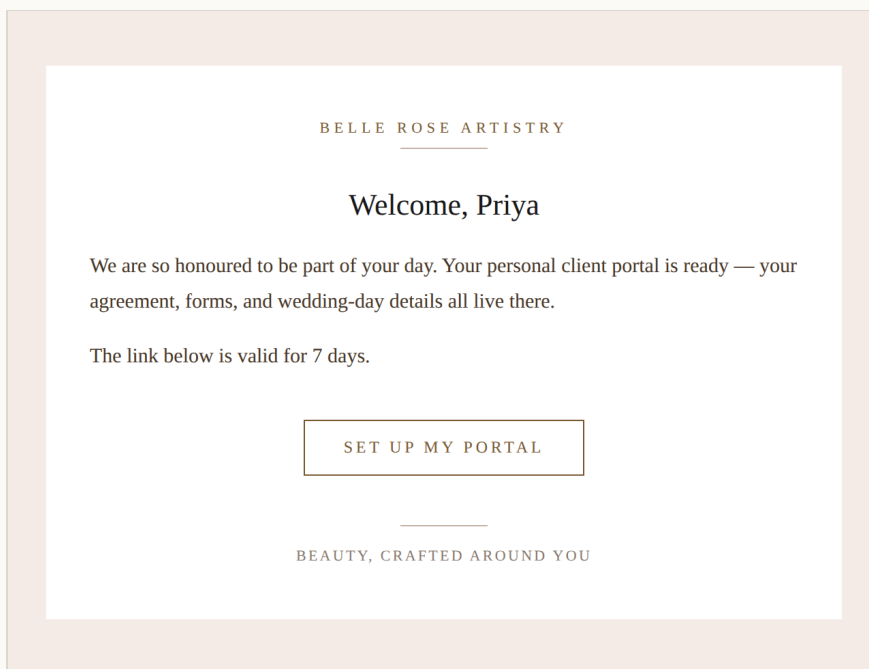

Sent from your address

Emails go out from your own domain, so they land in her inbox rather than junk.

Copy for WhatsApp

Most brides reply on WhatsApp or Instagram. The copy button gives you the link to paste wherever you're talking.

Studio > Client created. Copy the link for WhatsApp, or open her client page.

The welcome email she receives, in your brand.

Step 3 · Registration

She sets a password and she's in

The invite opens a page with her email already filled in. After that, she signs in on the client login.

The page her invite link opens.

Client login, with "Forgot password" built in.

Your studio login: a separate door.

On her phone.

Nothing to remember but a password

Her email is her login. Password resets are emailed and bring her straight back in.

Two doors that never cross

A client account can't open the studio, and a studio account can't open a client portal. The wrong one is turned away with a clear message.

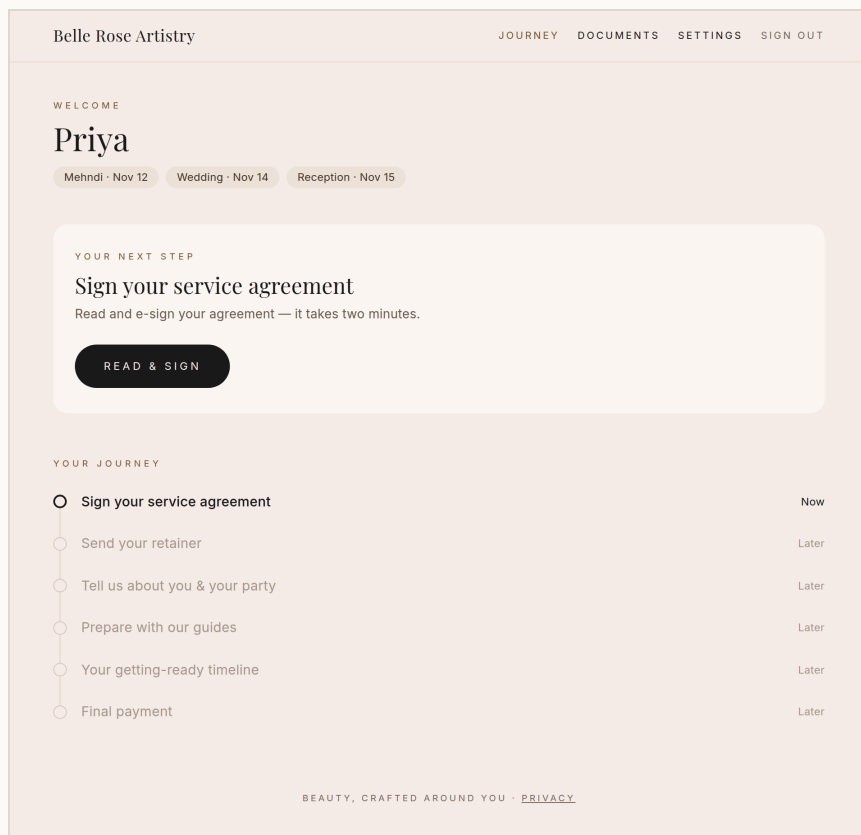

Hidden from search

Every portal page tells Google not to index it. Only your marketing pages are public.

Steps 4 to 9

Her home page: one next step at a time

Every visit opens on the one thing she should do next, with a single button. Her whole journey sits quietly underneath.

The button says what it does

"Read & sign", "See how to pay", "Continue", "See what to change". No guessing.

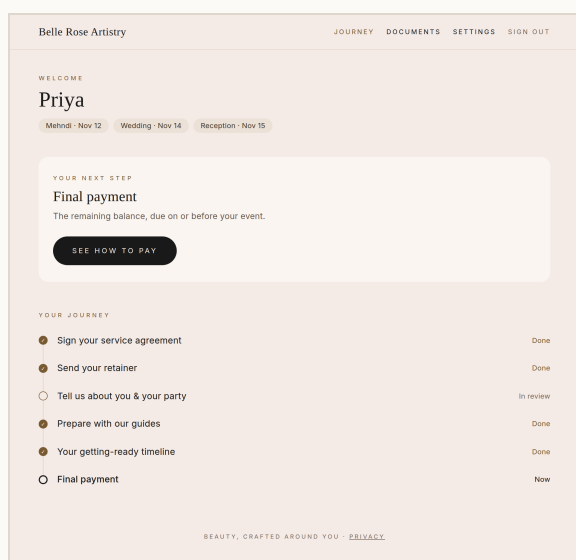

Steps open in order

Payments open after signing, guides after the retainer, the timeline once you publish it.

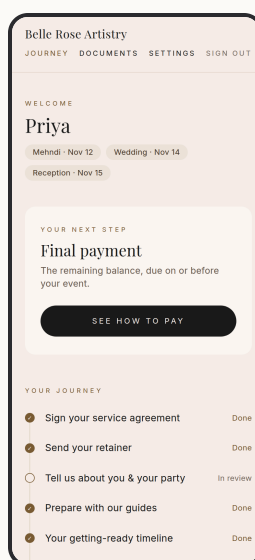

All her events at the top

Each event shows as a small tag with its date, so the portal always feels like hers.

Day one: sign the agreement.

Weeks later: only the final payment is left.

On her phone.

Her agreement shows every event and every price

Her booking and your fee schedule are built into the agreement she signs, event by event.

The bride's party link page: copy, turn off, and who has sent theirs.

Only what you booked

Guests can only choose services the booking includes, and pick which events they'll be styled at.

Straight into the intake

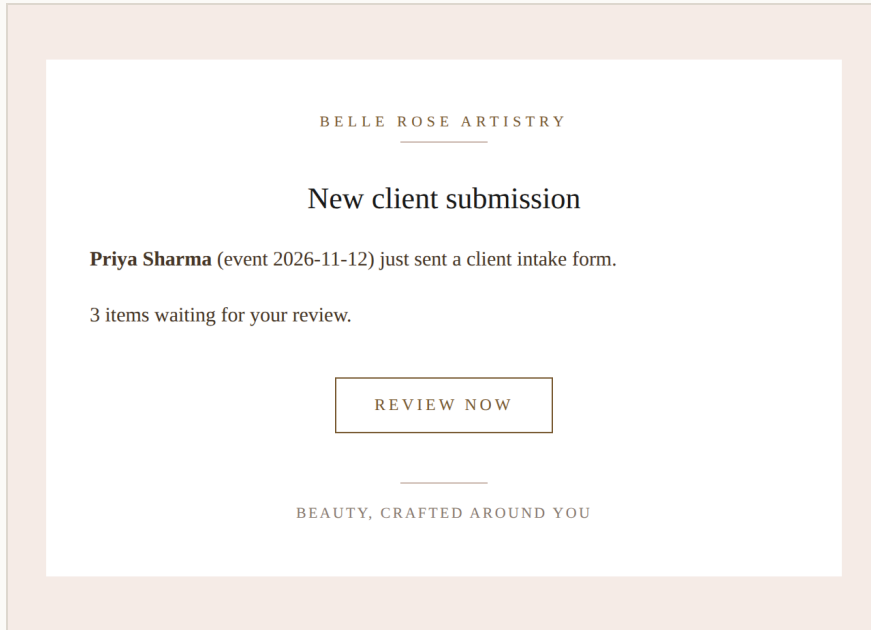

Each submission appears in the bride's party list and your review queue at the same moment.

Expires and can be switched off

The link closes 30 days after her last event. She can turn it off any time and make a new one.

Everything she sends waits for you in one queue

Signed agreements, intake forms and party profiles arrive grouped by bride. You approve, or ask for a change with a note.

Three actions

"View" opens her page on the right tab. "Approve" confirms it. "Request changes" sends a note she sees on her intake.

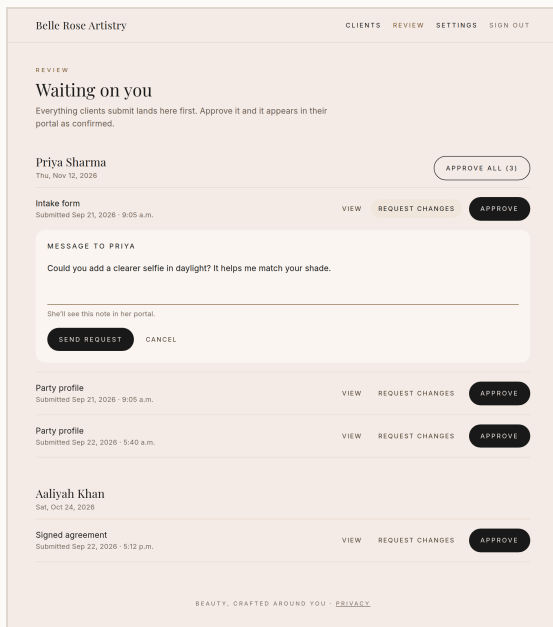

Approve all

When a whole party lands at once, one button approves every item for that bride.

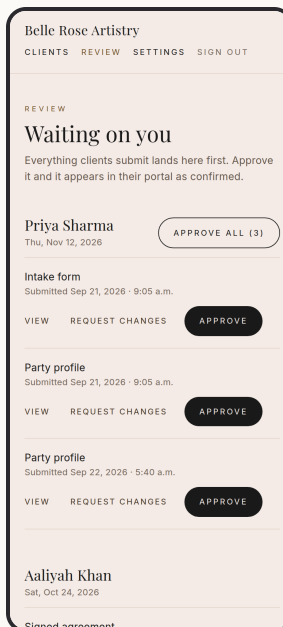

A live count

The Review tab shows how many items are waiting, on every studio page.

The alert you get. One email per batch, not one per profile.

Studio > Review, with a change request being written.

The queue on your phone.

Best at hair, makeup or both

The builder gives the bride's hair and makeup to the artists best at each.

Important people starred

The bride, her mother and the maid of honour are starred automatically and finish close to her.

Work back from ready-by

Set the ready time, the touch-up window and how early the bride is done. Or start from a set time instead.

Auto generate

One button plans the whole morning: one-hour services, each person's two services close together, artists kept busy rather than waiting around.

Studio > Client > Timeline: events, artists, guests and timing.

Step 8 · Timeline builder

Auto-generate the morning, then drag to fine-tune

Times are never typed. They follow from the order, each slot's length and the ready-by time, so moving one person re-times everyone.

BUILD THE DAY

Drag bricks between artists and up or down to reorder. Tap a brick to set who it is, their service, and whether they're important.

Your clients, sorted by what's coming next

The studio home lists upcoming brides with every event and the days to go. Past and archived clients are one tap away.

Built for a phone in one hand

Every studio page works at phone width, so you can approve a profile between clients.

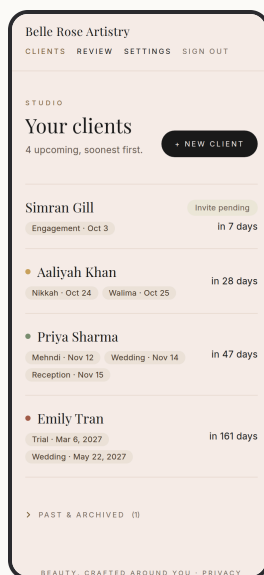

Upcoming until her last event

A bride stays in your upcoming list until her final event has passed.

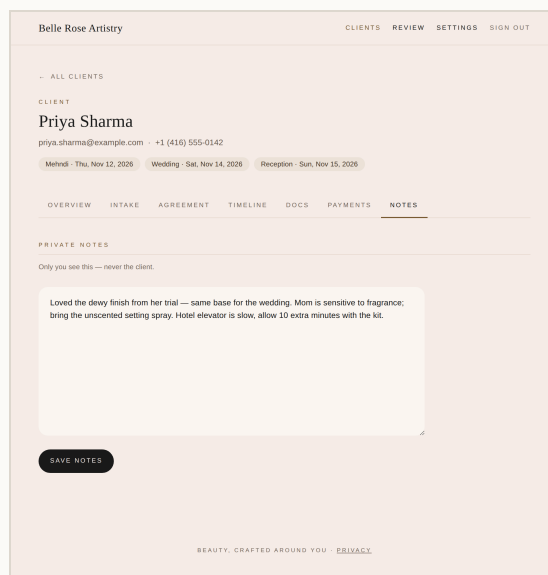

Settings you own

Your e-transfer address, where alerts go, your price list and your password. No developer needed.

Studio > Clients: each event as a tag, invite status, and a quiet dot for your client flag.

On your phone.

Private notes. Only you ever see these.

Her side

Her settings, and a reset that just works

She can update her phone number and change her password. Name and email changes go through you, so records stay clean.

Less to support

Forgotten passwords, the most common support message, resolve themselves by email.

Clean records

Her email is her login and appears on her agreement, so only you can change it.

Sign out anywhere

Sign out is on every page, for shared family tablets and laptops.

Behind the scenes, and what happens next

The parts you never see but would miss: security, privacy, backups, and how a build like this runs.

SECURITY & PRIVACY

- ◆ Each bride sees only her own data. Enforced by the database itself, not just by the screens.
- ◆ Your notes are separate. Private notes and client flags live where only you can read them.
- ◆ Photos are private. Stored in a private bucket and opened through links that expire after an hour.
- ◆ Links expire. Invite links are single-use and last 7 days. Party links close after the last event and can be switched off.
- ◆ Erasure is real. Deleting a client removes every form, photo and login, which is what PIPEDA expects when someone asks to be forgotten.
- ◆ Nothing indexed. Every portal page is hidden from search engines.

RELIABILITY

- ◆ Weekly automatic backups of every table, kept for 12 weeks and emailed to you.
- ◆ Branded email from your own domain for invites, alerts, invoices and password resets.
- ◆ Runs on managed cloud services (Vercel and Supabase), so there's no server for anyone to babysit.

HOW WE WOULD DO THIS WITH YOU

- ◆ 1 · A short call. We walk through this document, and you tell us what you want in, out, and added.
- ◆ 2 · Your brand, your words, your prices. Colours, fonts, logo, your agreement terms, your prep guides and your price list.
- ◆ 3 · Build. We set up your portal on your domain and load your first real booking together.
- ◆ 4 · A test run. You play the bride on your phone, and we adjust wording and order until it feels like you.
- ◆ 5 · Launch, then care. We stay on hand for tweaks, keep backups running, and add the add-ons when you're ready.

A note on the screens in this document.

They come from a live portal we built for a bridal hair & makeup artist in the GTA, shown under a placeholder studio name with demo clients and placeholder photos. Your portal would carry your brand, your terms and your wording from the first screen to the last.
